

excellent work

I would definitely recommend for others to go and see the performance of Lion King because it is an amazing experience and it is also fun to see. I did not expect the show to be so brilliant and now as I've seen it once I would go and see it loads more. I would also recommend others to go and see it because the way the show was made felt like it was not just for little kids but grown ups would enjoy it too. From the experience I have learnt that life is not always easy and sometimes things can go wrong. I have also learnt that not everyone is friends or wants to be friends and that you should do good things for others and people will appreciate that.

Flexibility was also used in the hyena dance which and especially when one of the hyenas did a back handspring. One other physical skill that has been used was stamina because some of the dances required a lot of energy for example the hyena dance. One of the interpretative skills used was focus. The dancers showed a good use of focus because they did not look down at the floor at any point and focused either at the audience or up when they made their moves so big that I could clearly see them from the height I was watching. One other interpretative skill used was facial expressions because all the dances had a specific emotion/atmosphere to create and the dancers showed that through their facial expressions. An example were facial expressions were used were again on the hyena dance which helped to communicate the animal theme throughout to the audience. The training that the dancers have prior to performing in this production is intense and would include dedication.
